What Would You Do?

Put yourself in the Rosens' place. What would you do if you had to suddenly leave the country? What would you want to take with you? Remember that they could only take very small items that could be carried with them, such as a locket, a small picture, or perhaps a small book. What about your family? Would your parents choose something different from what you would consider valuable? Interview them to find out!

In the spaces below, list the names of each of your family members to find out what small things they would carry with them and what they would most upset about leaving behind.
